Oroville, CA – Butte County officials announced that the Department of Development Services – Building Division earned the 2011 "Building Department of the Year" award from the California Building Officials Association (CALBO). Services in permitting, plan checking, code enforcement, and inspections provided by the Building Division staff have distinguished Butte County from more than 500 building departments throughout California. This is the first time a county has won the award.

The "Building Department of the Year" award is given to an agency that best demonstrates a high degree of service and involvement in these four categories: education, state affairs, community involvement, and innovation.

"This award is a reflection of commitment by the Board of Supervisors and staff from the Department of Development Services to deliver the highest level of customer service," said Steve Lambert, Chair of Butte County Board of Supervisors. "It should be noted that the award indirectly recognizes other County departments that are involved with the building permit process and those that support County operations. It really is a team effort."
