

New Venue for Unity in Diversity Festival 2009

Enjoy an afternoon of multicultural music and family fun at the ninth annual Unity in Diversity Festival, hosted by the Paradise Center for Tolerance and Nonviolence (PCTN) on Sunday, June 14, 2009, from noon – 4pm. The beautiful Paradise Community Park will be the setting for this year's festival. A lineup of talented local performers from diverse cultural backgrounds will present an afternoon of music and dance, enhanced by the quality of the park's performance pavilion. The park is located at Pearson and Black Olive Streets.

This promises to be a great afternoon for all ages. Kids can have fun at the Bounce House and enjoy free crafts and games. A silent auction and raffle will offer a chance to win terrific prizes donated by our local business community. A new feature this year – PCTN will be selling hotdogs (with & without meat), delicious vegetarian chili, homemade cookies, and sno-cones. Beer, soda and wine coolers will also be available to refresh you. Bring a blanket or lawn chairs and have a picnic!

Come early & stay to the end to enjoy all of the wonderful entertainment. We'll begin with the tranquil sounds of Eloise Newell playing Tibetan Bowls and close with Rube & the Rhythm Rockers with guest "Lazy Lester" Johnson. You won't want to miss singer, John Michael Sun; "Those Native Singers" & Fred Watkins Pow-Wow Drummers; Joy Duangpearach, Thai Dancer; folk singer David Ennis; and the popular "Doin' It Justice" Choir.

The festival is sponsored by PCTN and the California State Automobile Association (AAA). For more information, contact PCTN at 877-1856 or email to pctn@sbcglobal.net.
