

A Path to Positive Change

The National Community Development Institute (NCDI) is a nonprofit capacity building organization whose mission is to build capacity for social change in communities of color and other marginalized communities in a culturally – based way.

NCDI is humbled to have the opportunity to work with Southside Oroville residents with the support of the S.H. Cowell Foundation and the Butte County Department of Behavioral Health to develop a Path to Positive Change.

On June 1st, NCDI will make its first visit to Southside Oroville to meet and greet the community, take a community tour, learn about the great progress that is happening in Southside and present/discuss initial plans for co-designing and launching a community planning process.

Please plan to join us!!
