Southside Oroville Community-Building Project (A Path to Change)

Overview

Many regional initiatives to promote economic development, mental health, public health, cultural enrichment, youth development, etc. are underway to help build a thriving and sustainable future for Butte County residents. The geographic reach of these projects stretches across the county.

S. H. Cowell Foundation & Butte County Behavioral Health Department (BCBHD) are co-funding the National Community Development Institute to implement a local community-building process that will focus solely on Southside Oroville. This collective planning effort will help the Southside community unify & develop a common vision, as well as develop a comprehensive implementation plan for the African American Cultural Center (AACC).
